

The Seven™

(Working Title)

By James C. Shooter

Based on concepts and inspiration from Denise V. Wohl

Copyright © 2006 Denise V. Wohl

November 16, 2006

DOSSIER: SKINNER

CHARACTER DESCRIPTION

Scarlatta Lametta (Super Villain Name: “SKINNER”)

Height: 1.88 meters (six feet two inches)

Weight: Before transformation by Murk: 81.65 kilograms (184 pounds); after transformation: 226.80 kilograms (500 pounds) Athletic build.

(NOTE: After transformation, Skinner is far heavier than her size would suggest due to the density of her bones and flesh, accounting, in part, for her amazing strength and durability)

Complexion: Olive

Eye Color: Brown

Hair: Prematurely white

Age: 28

Astrological Sign: Aries

Clothes: Style: Functional, somewhat mannish (partially dictated by her size), somewhat “Guido”/Mafioso, i.e., Gucci’s, gold chains, dark shirts, light jackets, often with accents of her favorite color, green.

Abilities: Hideous strength, berserker imperviousness and bitter resolve (and, like Gaby, extra-dense, strong, super-durable flesh and bones). Her mob-enforcer nickname, “Skinner,” which she earned using a straight razor on some of her victims, suits her, Murk thinks.

Scarlatta “SKINNER” Lametta was born in the village of Salaparuta, Sicily, the only child of a burly worker in the Duca di Salaparuta vineyards and his peasant-stock wife. Scarlatta means “red” and Lametta means “razor.”

Always very big for her age, Scarlatta was teased incessantly by other children—until she could catch them and make them regret it. Even as a young child, Scarlatta was a capable and vicious fighter, and she wasn't averse to using a bat or a brick to even the odds against bigger male opponents. She did more than defend herself—as she grew older, she increasingly became the aggressor, terrorizing the other children of the village. Worse, it was rumored that sometimes she caught small animals and tortured them.

Scarlatta learned her violent ways at home. Her father was physically abusive to her and her mother. The frequent beatings built up a mighty, raging fury within Scarlatta's heart along with an abiding hunger to become the beast her father was.

When Scarlatta was eleven, her mother died of injuries inflicted by her father—though officially, her death was ruled an accident, due to “head injuries sustained in a fall.” Soon thereafter, her father packed up their belongings and moved them to New York City, partially to seek opportunity and partially to avoid further inquiry. Scarlatta's father was “connected,” that is, he had a distant relative in the Cosa Nostra.

As violent as he was, Scarlatta's father couldn't cut it with the mob and wound up working on the docks where he was killed when a container full of Toyota engine blocks was “accidentally” dropped on him.

Scarlatta, however, became a very successful mob enforcer. Tall and solidly built, she earned a well-deserved rep for brutality and toughness, even before her transformation. She was a “made woman” before she was 21. She routinely beat up men, even some far bigger than her, just as she beat up bigger boys back in Salaparuto. She also became a wizard with a straight razor.

“Skinner” is actually attractive in a strong, rugged, athletic way. She's also cruel, sadistic, brutal, violent, wantonly destructive, unjustly severe, vengeful and wrathful without reason—the very essence of anger.